Lapses of silence

Taking as a starting point the transition of color and tonality, these series of works are made to create an uncertain void where the dividing limits of its elements are lost in linear depths.

In a repetitive process of chromatic encounters made by the superposition of multiple layers of color, these flat surfaces seek "silence" by eliminating the existence of a figure in a particular event. An emotional landscape that take as reference those tones that belong to the world of spectral colors created by our mind in the absence of light.
